Knitwear and jersey

Knitwear and jersey are again very popular this season. Swiss manufacturers of these materials are universally known for the good quality of their products. They follow the fashion very closely and contrive innumerable models which stress the slender line of the moment and at the same time give ease to the movements and a great sense of comfort.

Jersey materials in soft pastel shades are a boon to the modern woman who needs to look for economy, for they are almost everlasting. In spite of their very light texture, frequent laundering neither alters their colour nor modifies their essential qualities which are resistance, elasticity and feather-weight lightness.

Bathing costumes are so conceived as to accentuate the slenderness of a supple figure and feminine curves. Swiss manufacturers take particular care in regard to the dyes employed for bathing costume fabrics, with the result that they are guaranteed unfadeable, even in sea-water. The new lastex weave has revolutionized the textile industry. Their success is due precisely to the fact that, when combined with cotton or silk, the material never gets out of shape.

As a whole, the new spring styles show but little variation from those of last year : they are intelligently simple and extremely practical, wearable and attractive. Tailormades are very much to the fore and they must be of sober elegance and cut on rather severe lines.

Several Swiss models offer just these characteristics. Ever practical minded, Swiss specialists have perfected the manufacture of jersey and knitwear and in spite of the difficulties of the present day have succeeded in putting on the market several charming styles which will doubtless entirely satisfy their patrons.

Especially to be noted are the shirt-waists in supple jersey which will be greatly worn with two-piece suits and tailormades. They are warm and cosy in the cool days of early spring. Some dresses are trimmed with large pockets ; the sleeves are elbow length and the skirt slightly gored and youthfully short.

Among the novelties of the season are gay tartan boleros. Soft pastel jackets and coats strike an unexpected note when worn over a black skirt or dress.

It seems as though all the efforts of Swiss manufacturers and dress designers have tended to one end : to unite in one joyous harmony both beauty and good quality.
