Von oben. Spelterinis Ballon und die Drohne

28.2.–28.6.2019

Eduard Schweizer (1852–1931) undertook some 570 balloon flights in Europe, Africa and the Middle East under the pseudonym Eduard Spelterini. They made him one of the world's most famous aviation pioneers.

The exhibition took Spelterini's photographs from the National Library's Department of Prints and Drawings as the starting point for a history of aerial photography in Switzerland. Originated by enterprising pioneers in the century before last, the medium has now been opened up to anyone with the advent of drones. Historical images, a virtual-reality balloon flight, photographs taken from aeroplanes and satellites as well as drone images enabled visitors to see the world from a different perspective.

Museum Night. From above

22.3.2019

The theme of Museum Night 2019 was ascents and descents. Right on time and in wonderful spring weather, luminéoles – fantastic birds filled with light – drifted across Bundesplatz on their graceful wings. The air was filled with the sound of auto engines as 90 classic cars rumbled through the streets of the old town, while coaches drawn by two horses trundled through the park of the city's History Museum. The Swiss National Library staged a spectacular drone show.

“Lieb mich von allen Sünden rein“

24.4.2019

A century ago, the writer Emmy Hennings spent almost two years living in Bern. While the city was only her temporary home, this period nevertheless marked a turning point in her life. Her artistic work still has great appeal today. A soirée celebrated the literary oeuvre of Emmy Hennings and placed it in the context of modern-day trends in literature. Heidi Maria Glössner, the “grande dame” of Swiss theatre and film, read from Hennings' poems and prose. The author Ariane von Graffenried, who received the Canton of Bern Prize for Literature for her most recent book “Babylon Park” (2017), presented some texts and talked about her relationship to Emmy Hennings.

Swiss Reading-Aloud Day

22.5.2019

Swiss Reading-Aloud Day is an annual event across the nation that highlights the importance of reading aloud and the ways in which it inspires and brings communities together. To mark the event, the NL invited Noelia Berberat (@noeliavid) to read from J. K. Rowling's “Harry Potter” novels. The Instagrammer, who is known for her self-irony and quirky humour, attributes her vivid imagination and sensibility to her mother who, every evening, would read to her from children's books in Italian or make up her own stories before her daughter went to sleep. Noelia wants every child to grow up with good stories.

Panel discussion on aerial images and democracy

20.6.2019

Since the turn of the millennium, photos and films taken using drones have not only been documenting wars but have also found their way into holiday albums and Instagram accounts around the world. They enable people to take spectacular images with little effort and prior knowledge, opening up entirely new perspectives in the process. But what does this democratisation of aerial imagery mean for our society? Where are drone images taken in Switzerland? How are they used? Who profits from them? Who needs to protect themselves, and what is the potential of these pilotless flying objects?

The panel discussion brought together Markus Höpflinger (Research Director, armasuisse), Max Jablonowski (Department of Social Anthropology, University of Zurich), Francisco Klauser (Director of the Institute of Geography, University of Neuchâtel) and Ina Neddermeyer (Head of the Art Department, Zeppelin Museum). It was moderated by Eliane Leiser of SRF 4 News.

“Ediziuns e reediziuns grischunas – problems e propostas”

30.–31.8.2019

At a conference organised at the University of Fribourg by Matthias Grünert and Renzo Caduff from the University’s Romansh studies programme in association with Annetta Ganzoni from the Swiss Literary Archives, speakers from three generations discussed current publishing projects involving texts from Graubünden. The lively and constructive exchange dealt with publications of historical manuscripts and books, as well as new editions of poetry and prose from the 19th and 20th centuries. Author and linguist Dumenic Andry offered his own satirical take on the topic.

Wikimedia CH invited to the National Sound Archives

25.–27.10.2019

The biggest event held at the Swiss National Sound Archives in 2019 was “GLAM on Tour” (25–27 October). To mark UNESCO World Day for Audiovisual Heritage on 27 October, the Archives issued an invitation to Wikimedia CH. Over three days of total immersion, the “Wikimedians” were given an introduction to the history of recording technology and an insight into the countless audio documents held by the Archives, which are an invaluable record of our cultural identity. This was an intensive and exciting weekend during which the Wikimedia members learnt about the cultural heritage in audio form preserved by the Archives through presentations, guided tours and guest lectures.
