Summary of the speech delivered by

Adolf Wagner,

Gauleiter und Staatsminister, Munich.

Gauleiter and Minister of State Adolf Wagner welcomed the visitors in his capacity as Head of the Supreme Building Authority in Bavaria and Gauleiter of the National Socialist Movement, and drew their attention to the fact that in Munich they were on historic ground with regard to the new Reich, since the Movement which alone rendered it possible to reconstruct the new Reich in its present shape had been set on foot from here by the Führer, Adolf Hitler. From here, too, developed the modern German building style — as incorporated in the works of the unforgettable Paul Ludwig Troost — here in Munich the Führer also found in Dr. Todt the right man to build Adolf Hitler's new roads. Munich is not only the capital of the Movement but also the metropolis of German art and known all over the world for its gaiety and hospitality. Here the visitors to the Congress had every opportunity of getting into touch with the new spirit and of studying National Socialist aims and achievements. And after seeing what National Socialist Munich had to show them, they would surely retain pleasant memories of the city.
