Management System of the Radio and Television Division

H. Bosshard, Berne

It is the responsibility of the management of the PTT General Directorate's Radio and Television Division to provide the service managers in charge of telephone regions with the necessary guide-lines to permit an optimum utilization of their facilities. The article points out the essential considerations, requirements, principles and standardization leading to the system described herein.

p. 378...393

Wood Protection in Line Construction

H. Steinle, Berne

Only short open-wire telephone lines are encountered in residential areas. Long lines are limited to prealpine and alpine regions. Notwithstanding, the overhead line has not lost its importance. To keep it sound, as the most important support element, the wooden mast must be protected from harmful influences. To increase its life-span, an effective wood preservation program is undertaken. Life-tests in pole gardens are suitable to judge the effectiveness of the various preservatives and impregnating processes under different environmental conditions. The installed pole requires periodical checks and, according to its service-age, an effective after-treatment.
