THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF ZURICH. (By Leu & Co's Bank Limited, Zurich).

Zurich, 2nd December, 1935.

For the stock exchange business the month of November was rich in surprises. Although opening quietly with little trading at the beginning, the firm disposition of a few international shares hinted at the fact, that the political and financial outlook of a few European countries was becoming the growth of the control of cial outlook of a few European countries was becoming more and more complex, and truly, soon the Banque de France had to raise her discountrate twice within a short time. In spite of these measures the French gold losses were considerable and when Mr. Laval's cabinet was put in question for a while, French securities suffered a noticeable slump. On the other side, however, stocks like Hispano, Italo-Argentina and Royal Dutch as well as the two American railways Baltimore and Pennsylvania advanced sharply, finding a strong support also in the generally Baltimore and Pennsylvania advanced sharply, finding a strong support also in the generally well disposed New York markets. As this rise was only partially due to sounder economic improvement in world trade with regard to the U.S.A. and not with Europe, (considering the beginning of the League's sanctions on the 18th of this month) the slightest change in the situation led to considerable fluctuations in prices and daily turnovers. It must be said, however, that these above mentioned stocks kept all the time well above the quotations reached at the beginning of the month, and though below top prices now, are still favoured by investors. In a lesser degree affected by this upward trend were the now, are still favoured by investors. In a lesser degree affected by this upward trend were the Swiss industrials, and a few only sold for slightly more. Such were Aluminium, which reached once a maximum price of 1560 and in the later part of the month one of 1555 after a setback of about 30 Francs. Also Nestlé found active trading, but hardly ever was able to stay above the 800 mark. Other stocks such as Brown Boverie, Lonza, Sulzer and Maschinenfabrik Oerlikon were practically unable to improve much, while Kraftwerk Laufenburg and Vereinigte Luzerner. Brauereien showed a decidedly weak disposition which led to heavy losses especially for the latter (650 against 785). Towards the end of November the drop in prices became more universal as a less certain tendency developped also in the American certain tendency developped also in the American Markets.

Also the bond trade was subject to considerable ups and downs, according to the degree of hopes that was attributed to certain events. After fairly stable conditions at first, Swiss gilt-edged securities began to flutter, especially when the new finance-programme of the Federal Council met with increased opposition. Besides the French difficulties exerted a certain pressure that led to increased selling. On the other hand, however some German bonds could be found for higher prices only, for instance 7% German Potash, that advanced within a month from 37% to 43%. Similarly 5½%, Young improved approximately 3% and are wanted now for 26%, while Funding bonds had a good market with little improvement, 30% instead of 29%. As nobody considered the League's measures of being very effective at first. Italian bonds, including such of Italian-Swiss holding companies met with some interest of no permanent duration.
