Federal

Monsieur R. Rubattel, President of the Swiss Confederation, has been nominated an honorary freeman of Villarzel, his birth-place.

* * *

Various changes have been made in the Personnel of the Federal Political Department (Swiss Foreign Office) in Berne.

The Federal Council has nominated Minister Alfred Zehnder, — Head of the section for political affairs —, Secretary-General of the Federal Political Department.

Counsellor of Legation, M. Egbert von Graffenried, — Deputy to the Chief for political affairs — has received the title of Minister.

Minister von Graffenried, to whom we extend heartiest congratulations on his promotion, is no stranger to the Swiss Colony. In 1943, he took up the position as 1st Secretary of Legation and Attaché Commercial, at the Swiss Legation, in succession to Monsieur Girardet, the latter being appointed Swiss Minister at Copenhagen. During his seven years stay in London, he soon impressed everybody by his immense assiduity, by the attention he invariably paid to the smallest detail, by his eagerness to study any given problem à fond, and particularly by his complete and utter personal sincerity and integrity. He left London in March 1950, to take up an important position at the Political Department in Berne.

Counsellor of Legation, Paul Clottu, has been appointed Head of the section for Administrative Affairs at the Federal Political Department.

M. Clottu also enjoyed great popularity in the Swiss Colony in Great Britain, and to him too our warmest congratulations are extended. He was appointed Social Counsellor to the Swiss Legation in 1947, leaving London in August, 1952, for Berne, where he occupied an important position in the Swiss Foreign Office.

The Swiss Federal Railways carried in November, 1953, 16.6 million passengers, or 642,000 more than in November 1952. Receipts: 20.26 million frs. (Nov., 1952: 19.47 million frs.).

Goods traffic is returned as 1,78 million tons transported, or 229,000 tons more than during the same period in 1952. Receipts: 33.41 million francs.

A new chair-lift has just been opened at La Creusaz, in the Valley of Trient (Valais). In fifteen minutes, passengers are carried from the village of Les Marécottes to a magnificent natural belvedere overlooking the Valley and the Alps (rising from 3,300 to 5,400 ft). Skiers will appreciate the Golettaz ski-tow, rising to 6,900 ft. to a spot where a full view of Mont Blanc is obtained. Other chairlifts are contemplated from Les Diablerets to the Col des Anderets and Verbier-Croix des Ruinettes.

Communication by road is now, and for the first time, secured between Küblis — a well-known halt to skiers on the Parsenn track near Davos — and St. Antönien, a village at 4,260 ft. above the River Landquart, the starting point of several downhill tracks. St. Antönien is also famous for a fine old 15th century church. Postal coaches are operating on this line.

A new "small" or "pocket" theatre has just been opened in Lausanne. It is known as the "Théâtre du Petit-Chêne" and is of the type very popular in Paris and Geneva; accommodating only 200, it is comfortable and even luxurious and the management propose to produce "problem" plays and good comedies, billing outstanding performers. It is certain to be a success, because Lausannites are notorious theatre-lovers.

between London and Zurich for vehicles and passengers. Aircraft leave London (Blackbushe Airport, Camberley, Surrey) on Saturdays and arrive at Zurich by noon, thus permitting many of the popular winter sports centres to be reached the same day.

Return flights leave Zurich early afternoon, arriving back in London early evening. This service is especially designed for the benefit of winter sports enthusiasts who wish to take their cars (or motor cycles) abroad, but who want to avoid the arduous two-day drive across Europe. Only passengers accompanying vehicles will be carried. The charge for cars up to an overall length of 13½ ft. is £25 per single journey or £35 over that length. Passengers £14.17.0 single or £26.15.0 return. Vehicle rates include comprehensive insurance cover against loss or damage during loading and whilst in flight.

Zermatt has in the course of the last two years spent about 100,000 Swiss francs in improving the marvellous Gornergrat ski run, which starting at an altitude of about 10,000 ft. descends to Zermatt, a difference of nearly 5,000 ft. A passage through Riffelberg which was formerly considered very dangerous no longer presents any difficulty, as the slope has been made less steep, thanks to the piercing of a tunnel about 80 yards long through the rock.

Two British women who will accompany the Swiss guide Raymond Lambert on a Himalaya expedition next autumn are Mrs. Monica Jackson, of Tomintoul, Scotland, and Mrs. Anne Marsh. Mr. Lambert said that it was due to the initiative of the two women that the expedition was first considered. The party will also comprise some Swiss climbers. Mr. Lambert hopes that the cost of the expedition will not exceed £1,300 a head.

Hugo Koblet and Armin Von Buren, Switzerland, won the final of the European Winter Criterium, the unofficial Madison championship, at Zurich, when they beat Schulte and Peters, Holland, and Bruneel and Acou, Belgium. The result of the 1953 series is a repetition of that for 1952. The first three teams finished equal on distance, the result being decided by the final sprint.

A Swiss delegation has visited Italy to discuss the possibility of a road tunnel under the St. Bernhard to connect the two countries.

SWISS NEUTRALITY.

A notable statement of policy has been made by M. Max Petitpierre, the Swiss Foreign Secretary. Recently there has been much grumbling in Switzerland about Swiss "commitments" in the two neutral commissions in Korea. The sharp criticism of Switzerland by the Soviet satellites because the Swiss delegation in Panmunjom stood out for basic human rights and resisted the use of violence against prisoners made the public wonder whether Switzerland was not unwittingly making itself the protagonist of the West. M. Petitpierre endeavoured to drive home that "neutrality" does not imply a purely passive attitude "had to be adopted towards the groundless recognised and respected," he said, "neutrality has to be supported by deeds which justify it. Neutrality has its obligations." He said that an "energetic attitude" had to be adopted towards the groundless accusation levelled against the Indian, Swedish, and Swiss representatives on the Neutral Nations Commission because their views did not coincide with those of the Chinese and North Korean command. This is a sound and constructive attitude. The combination of neutrality, which the Swiss believe to be a prerequisite for the political existence of their country, with active attempts to be useful to peace in the real sense of the word is bound to have a beneficial influence in the world. Neutrality need not presuppose constant soundings at the precise location of the central point between extremes and strict navigation along the dotted line. The alternative is an active approach which, by the nature of Switzerland's genuine and traditional neutrality, would help it to mediate, if and when called upon, and thus serve peace and international stability. The Swiss Government's activity in Korea has been an outstanding example of this approach and one for which it deserves thanks.

THE SWISS NATIONAL ANTHEM. RUFST DU MEIN VATERLAND.

(by J. R. Wyss.)

Fatherland, at your call,
We offer you our all,
Our heart, our life.
Hail to Helvetia's name;
Your sons are still the same
As those who built your fame,
Joyful in strife.

Where the great Alpine shield
Can no protection yield,
God will sustain.
Rocklike, we shall not fail,
In danger never pale,
Meet death without a wail
And smile in pain.

You shaped our destiny
And made us strong and free
O native soil.
Steadfast in times of need,
Perils we shall not heed,
And for a noble deed
Gladly we'll toil.

Free and for ever free!
This shall our watchword be,
Our heartfelt prayer.
Free are they who can die,
And who with purpose high
To every task apply
A courage rare.

But when God sends us peace
And battle tumults cease,
O what delight.
Banish the deadly steel,
Let's build with joy and zeal,
Having the homeland's weal
Ever in sight.
