VARIOUS.

Fifteen Swiss Chefs, amongst Chefs of other nationalities, are in charge of the catering at the Olympic Games in Melbourne.

Up to October 17th, 1956, the 100,000th motor vehicle passed through the Gotthard tunnel. This figure has never before been attained in one year.

The reconstruction of the Schiltgrat skilift at Mürren (which is being extended at both ends, and will have an increased capacity of 400 passengers per hour) is in progress. Here is some technical data: Altitude at starting-point in the valley: 1,600 metres (5,248 ft. a.s.l.), altitude at the summit: 2,150 m. (7,152 ft.), length: 1,500 m. (4,920 ft.), difference in altitude: 550 m. (1,804 ft.), transport capacity: 400 passengers per hour.

One of the most popular sights in Zurich is the miniature railway located near the Zoological Gardens in a specially designed building. It has attracted thousands of foreign visitors this past summer. Not only a miniature railway is displayed but there is in addition an accurate replica of the imposing Bernese Alps with all their large and small railways and funiculars. Some of the boldly constructed bridges of the Berne-Loetschberg-Simplon line are exact copies on a 1.50 scale, and the whole transportation network consists of 462 yards of rail, 32 switches, 5 intersections, 33 signals, and 320 electric cable poles. The electric locomotives are equipped with two engines each and are miniature replicas of the real engines of the Swiss Federal Railways, the Berne-Loetschberg-Simplon and the Bernese Oberland lines. Up to fifteen trains can circulate simultaneously in this "Alpine Wonderland" which is 24 yards long and 15 yards wide, and shows 42 well-known mountain peaks. The sky, by the way, like the entire system of stations, illuminated villages and tramways, is connected to a control board by a total of 22 miles of wires and a special lighting device produces effects of all shades of daylight from dawn to sunset. This electrical "Alpine glow" is almost life-like and in the "afternoons" small motor boats ply the Lake of Brienz at the foot of the giant mountains. It is the most expensive and largest miniature railway in the world.

Switzerland's second-largest city, with almost 200,000 inhabitants, is preparing for a number of festivities to celebrate its 2,000th anniversary. From the middle of August 1957 until the autumn this unique historical event will be commemorated by a colourful programme of activities, in which the neighbouring Rhine communities, Augst and Kaiseraugst, will also participate. In the vicinity of these two villages lies the nucleus of the modern Rhine city of Basel, which has risen in the course of the centuries to be one of Europe's most important railway junctions, and the Roman town of Augusta Rauracorum, founded in the 1st century B.C., whose imposing ruins are still a main attraction to-day. Basel itself grew out of the Celtic settlement of Robur and was incorporated to the ancient Augusta Rauracorum by the Roman Emperor Valentinian I.

In spite of its history dating back to pre-Christian pre-Roman times, and its preservation of the medieval character evident in to-day's old town rich in monuments, Basel is an extremely progressive city known for her interest in art and modern architecture. In this connection it should be mentioned that, in the jubilee year, four new hotels (among them the ultra-modern "International" with more than 100 rooms, all with baths) will open their doors in time for next year's Swiss Industries Fair (April 27th to May 7th, 1957). The reopening of the completely re-

Switzerland's population has surpassed the 5 million mark this year. The Canton of Zurich with its 849,000 inhabitants has become the most populous canton, replacing the Canton of Berne, hitherto ranked first.

The Melchsee-Frutt Aerial Railway in Central Switzerland which has been in service for over 20 years and can no longer cope with to-day's traffic demand will be entirely reconstructed. The inauguration of the new aerial cableway has been scheduled for the beginning of the 1957 summer season, while the old aerial cableway will continue to run during the winter season of 1956/57.

Bad Ragaz, the world-renowned spa, rightly named the fountain of youth, is itself undergoing a rejuvenation cure this autumn and winter, and will present next spring an entirely new appearance. An extensive programme of rebuilding and redecoration is being carried out in the thermal establishments and hotels. The Spa House and adjoining Medical Institute are being pulled down and a modern spa, with an up-to-date medical department, erected. Redecoration is also proceeding at the Hotel Quellenhof, whose reputation once spread well beyond the frontiers of Switzerland. Furthermore, a new golf course is nearly completed, the Kursaal is undergoing renovation, and the parks and public gardens are being modernised and almost doubled in extent. All the work is to be completed by the beginning of next year's season, so that Ragaz Spa can welcome 1957 visitors in an entirely new setting.

M. Jacques Piccard, son of the Swiss deep-sea and stratosphere explorer, Professor Auguste Piccard, on October 17th, achieved the deepest dive ever made in the bathyscaphe Trieste, built to the specifications of his father. It touched the sea bottom at a depth of about 12,500ft. off the island of Ponza, north of Naples. Professor Pollini, an Italian geologist, was with him.

They began the dive at noon G.M.T. and finished at 6.15 p.m. when the bathyscaphe surfaced between two Italian Navy tugs, with which telephonic contact had been maintained. The Navy has assisted exploration by the Piccards from the start in 1953.

Both M. Piccard and Professor Pollini came up in excellent condition, although disappointed that they had failed to beat the record of 13,200ft. set up by two French naval officers early in 1954 in a bathyscaphe of their own construction.

M. Piccard said it would take several days to complete records of their observations and to sort out the specimens they obtained from the sea bed.
