A report that Switzerland has designs on money said to have been salted away by ex-President Peron in Switzerland has brought a sharp protest to the Argentine Government from the Swiss.

According to a dispatch from Buenos Aires, quoting Argentine Government sources, the Swiss have refused to disclose the whereabouts of large sums deposited for Peron by his wife, Eva, and her brother Juan Duarte.

The report, published in the New York Herald Tribune, says the Swiss attitude has angered Argentine authorities.

An Argentine official is quoted as having said: "If the Swiss were to refuse Peron a visa until his death, they could take possession of his money in the end".

Describing the allegation as outrageous, a Swiss Foreign Office official said: "Our Government has never received a request for information concerning such funds".

Europe's Longest "Gondola" Teleferique.

The resort village of Zweisimmen in the upper Simmen Valley of the Bernese Oberland plans to construct the longest "gondola" Téléferique in Europe. Its total length will measure 5,544 yards with a difference in altitude of 3,156 feet. The egg-shaped "gondolas", featuring sliding picture-windows, can convey 350 to 400 tourists per hour up to the lofty heights.

Zweisimmen can be reached in two hours from the Swiss federal capital, Berne, by direct trains. Thanks to this new "gondola" téléferique these uplands, which up to now have been almost exclusively the domain of the mountaineer, will be accessible also to the average hiker and downhill skier. In connection with the already existing skilift Oeschseite-Berghaus Rinderberg it will offer skiers a multitude of exciting descents and inexhaustible excursion possibilities over the ridge of Gandlauen-Parwangen to the resorts of Gstaad and Saanenmoeser or to the Wistatthorn Mountain amidst the breathtaking mountain world of the Bernese Alps.
