700 Anniversary of the City of Sursee.

Sursee, the quaint little town in the Canton of Lucerne, commemorates its 700th anniversary this year. A document dated 1256 and treasured in the cantonal archives of the city of Lucerne, reveals that Count Hartmann the Younger of Kyburg donated a homestead to the district and convent of St. Urban, "so that they may build a house in that very place", and on the same occasion admitted the monastery of St. Urban under his protectorate. Authentic relics at Sursee today are evidential of an urban community established under the sovereignty of the Kyburgs which lasted till 1278. The commemorative day, July 8th, will be marked by several popular festivities as well as a historic pageant. An exhibition of paintings, armour and other vestiges of Sursee's colourful history will be an added attraction.

Mr. José A. Bay has been appointed Swissair representative for the Spanish-speaking territory of South America. He is now in Buenos Aires to organise new Swissair offices there.

Mr. Bay was formerly General Manager of Wagon-Lits/Cook in Chile and later in Brazil; subsequently he was a manufacturer in Switzerland.

Plans are under active study to extend Swissair's present South America service to Buenos Aires and to increase it to two flights weekly.

HYMNE A LA TERRE.

Pierre Girard.

Soil of my homeland, ever sunlight-fed
And tilled throughout the year, a fruitful loam;
Soil of the vineyard, soil that grows our bread,
That throbs with life, surrounding every home.

All Heaven's breath and energy contrive
By unseen rays to stir the hidden root
And, mingling in your breast, create a life
That slowly rises in each tender shoot.

Soil, you that reabsorb our flesh, our hopes,
Our tears, desires, our triumphs and defeats
So that from lake and plain to mountain slopes
The morning harvest that of evening greets.

It is your strength, O soil, that gives us birth,
Your destiny dwells mirrored in our heart;
Your laws are ours, for everywhere on earth
Death, love and flowering have their part.

We love you in our women's eyes that shine,
And in the golden skin of those who toil,
We love your gift of glowing, dreamy wine
Soil of our fathers and our children's soil.

To you, the dead who rest and softly sleep
Beside the church whose shadow oft is thrown,
Now blue, now grey, as the hours onward creep,
We promise we shall make your task our own.

This land you gave us, land so rich and fair,
With vineyards rising steeply from the shore,
It shall be handed to our children's care
To guard its noble past for evermore.
