GOTTHARD TUNNEL PROJECT

The Federal Council was asked by Parliament in March and June 1960 to consider and report on a project regarding a road tunnel through the Gotthard. Early in July, the Federal Council reported to Parliament. The project put forward favours the deep tunnel from Göschenen to Airolo (16.4 km. and 1,150 m. above sea level) rather than the 7.2 km. long tunnel from Maetteli to Motto-Bartolla (1,680 m. above sea level) or a tunnel of 10.5 km. length from Hospenthal to Bedrina (1,464 m. above sea level). The Federal Council prefers the deep tunnel because it would provide the best, shortest and safest connection, and its openings would be in naturally favourable spots on both sides. It would also eliminate the expensive motorway through the Schoellenen Gorge and the avalanche-prone gradients above Airolo. In addition, this scheme would be the cheapest to execute and to run.

A new railway tunnel project "Gotthard West" has been put forward by a Valais engineer Albert Coudray.

The discussions will continue on both projects. There is a Committee "Pro Gotthard" as well as a permanent conference of the "Gotthard Cantons" Zurich, Lucerne, Uri, Schwyz, Zug, Basel-Stadt, Basel-Land, Aargau and Ticino.
