A noble sponsor

The founders were very well aware of the grave risks the Fund had to carry (as a matter of fact, it still carries them today). Some kind of «reinsurance» was necessary in the interest of the members, and only the Swiss State could give it. On 22nd July 1962, Parliament agreed to a guarantee for statutory compensation. Only from 1963 to 1967 did it have to be used, but thanks to favourable development, the Fund had repaid these sums already by 1973.

Twenty years – to majority

Thus the Fund was able to consolidate its strength and collected a great deal of varied and valuable experience in many countries and thousands of cases. They were reflected in the new Constitution which came into force on 1st January 1975. The possibilities of insurance and various ways of accumulating savings were adjusted to suit the manifold needs of the Swiss abroad.

The Fund has come of age: happy journey!

The Solidarity Fund presents itself

The Solidarity Fund for Swiss Abroad is a private co-operative domiciled in Berne. It is run by a Council in honorary capacity, whose members are well acquainted from long experience with the problems of their compatriots abroad. (Half of them in fact are resident abroad.) The Swiss Federal Council sends delegates to the Council and appoints one of the auditors of the Fund.

The two basic pillars of the Fund are saving and insurance against political loss of livelihood. This loss may have very varied reasons, not only war, civil war and internal strife, but also coercive measures such as nationalisation, expulsion, withdrawal of working permit.

Moreover, diversity is the Fund's watchword.

The Fund pays lump sum compensation, but in addition it also repays the accumulated savings not only interest on the contributions, but this is free of withholding tax

The Fund is available to all Swiss abroad not only for self-employed, but also for employees in any occupation (even missionaries)

not only for people earning a living, but also for retired men and women not only for husbands and wives, but also for their children (i.e. for the whole family)

not only for individual members, but also for collective members (firms, companies)

The Fund is safe

not only by state guarantee, but also by investing the savings capital of the co-operative members with the Confederation

The Fund is not only wise foresight, but also an ideal

The Fund works fast – but then living conditions can change fast, too, and unexpectedly nowadays.

Manifold, diversified – that is the Fund. The form on the next page enables every Swiss abroad to find a personal solution, and yet it is easy to fill in. (The information is extensive and precise.)

Why not try it?

I. Savings deposits and lump sum compensation are always connected in the Fund. According to how you assess the political risk, the one or the other is more important to you.

(Please mark with a cross whichever applies)

1. I am more interested in saving
- and wish to make a single savings deposit (see table A and explanations under part II, paragraph 1)
 - and wish to make annual payments (see table B and explanations under part II, paragraph 1)
2. I am more interested a lump sum compensation on losing the basis of livelihood
- and wish to make a single deposit (see table A and explanations under part II, paragraph 2)
 - and wish to make annual payments (see table B and explanations under part II, paragraph 2)

II. Choice of deposit

1. Saving

Whether you chose table A or B, risk category III is always the most profitable for you (highest deposits and best rate of interest, but comparatively low lump sum compensation).

Note: Risk category II allows a middle solution with smaller contribution.

2. Lump sum compensation

Whether you chose table A or B (lump sum compensation from SFr. 2500.— to SFr. 50000.—) risk category I is always the most profitable for you (high lump sum compensation and lower contribution, but also lower rate of interest).

Note: Risk category II allows a middle solution.

IMPORTANT: Always insure sufficiently against loss of livelihood by selecting a lump sum compensation which corresponds approximately to your annual income.
