Fashions and Daily Life

Photos Schaub.

The members of the ready-made wear group of the textile industries presented their creations to visitors at the 3rd Swiss Fashion Week with a masterly skill indicative of great experience.

The display lasted two whole hours during which a delighted audience witnessed the parade of cosy, plush sports coats, trim tailormades, dainty afternoon gowns and luxurious evening wear — in short, all that a woman needs in the way of ensembles, dresses and coats for morning, afternoon, evening, sports and town wear.

There was certainly no lack of imagination in the creations presented by the trade. But inspiration here was so tempered by good taste, that no model appeared too bold or audacious — not merely to tempt a daughter of Eve, but to be really wearable in every day life. These models are not created for film stars out for publicity, but incorporate a number of practical ideas which women do so appreciate in their clothes, whether in dresses or jewellery, hats, stockings, footwear, umbrellas or gloves.

A series of ballets further added to the attraction of these evening display and won great applause from an appreciative public.
