Presentation of an Article

We thought it might be interesting for once, instead of writing in this trade journal about fabrics — the raw material of all fashion designing — to consider the way in which an article is presented and to examine modern advertising trends and the methods used to launch a new article. And if by way of example we refer to the launching in Switzerland of the new OSA-ATMOS fabric, this is no mere coincidence but deliberate stressing of a consistently maintained line — rarely found in textile publicity.

Let us first of all take a look at the product to be promoted.

OSA-ATMOS is a fabric produced from a mixture of 67 % DIOLEN (polyester fibre) and 33 % specially selected cotton. A special finish, known as AFI-Superfinish, places this fabric for smart rain-coats and new-type sports clothes in the top quality range. It has at least ten outstanding advantages. It is very light, weighing a third less than the best fabrics of the same kind; it has an extraordinary power of «resilience» making even the strongest creases disappear completely; it feels like tussah, hangs very naturally and has a distinctive gloss. AFI-Superfinish simplifies upkeep and allows the material to dry very rapidly — water forms beads on it without wetting. OSA-ATMOS requires no ironing and is extremely agreeable to wear. Furthermore, although it affords excellent protection against the wind, it does not prevent the skin from breathing freely. Its tensile strength and resistance to abrasion are high. Also, OSA-ATMOS coats never lose their shape.

This long list of advantages was both an asset and a danger. Such arguments are invaluable and even decisive when used by a skilled salesman, for they can be brought home whenever needed in the sales talk. In anonymous publicity, however, which is intended for mass consumption, this long list may constitute a handicap. In fact, the layman consumer at whom this type of advertising is aimed, is very seldom in a position to absorb and understand all these arguments practically at the same time. Furthermore, it

The collage consists of several distinct elements:

- Top Left: A large graphic featuring a feather and the text "OSA ATMOS mit AFI-Super-Finish".
- Top Center: A panel with the text "67% DIOLEN 33% COTTON" and "OSA ATMOS A GREAT SWISS FABRIC".
- Top Right: A large image of a woman in a light-colored trench coat and a man in a dark suit, standing on a cobblestone street.
- Middle Left: A panel with the letter "A" and several columns of small text in German, likely describing the fabric's properties.
- Middle Right: A panel with the letter "B" and a small image of a hand holding a piece of fabric.
- Bottom Left: A panel with the text "OSA ATMOS" and a graphic of a feather.
- Bottom Center: A panel with the text "OSA ATMOS" and a graphic of a hand holding a piece of fabric.
- Bottom Right: A panel with the text "OSA ATMOS" and a graphic of a hand holding a piece of fabric.

may happen that he does not become conscious of the most important arguments at all.

To avoid this danger, the use of the full list of advantages has been confined to technical reports and advertisements in textile periodicals (B), intended to inform the retail trade only, while for the general public a selection is made and given in small booklets attached to the garment itself.

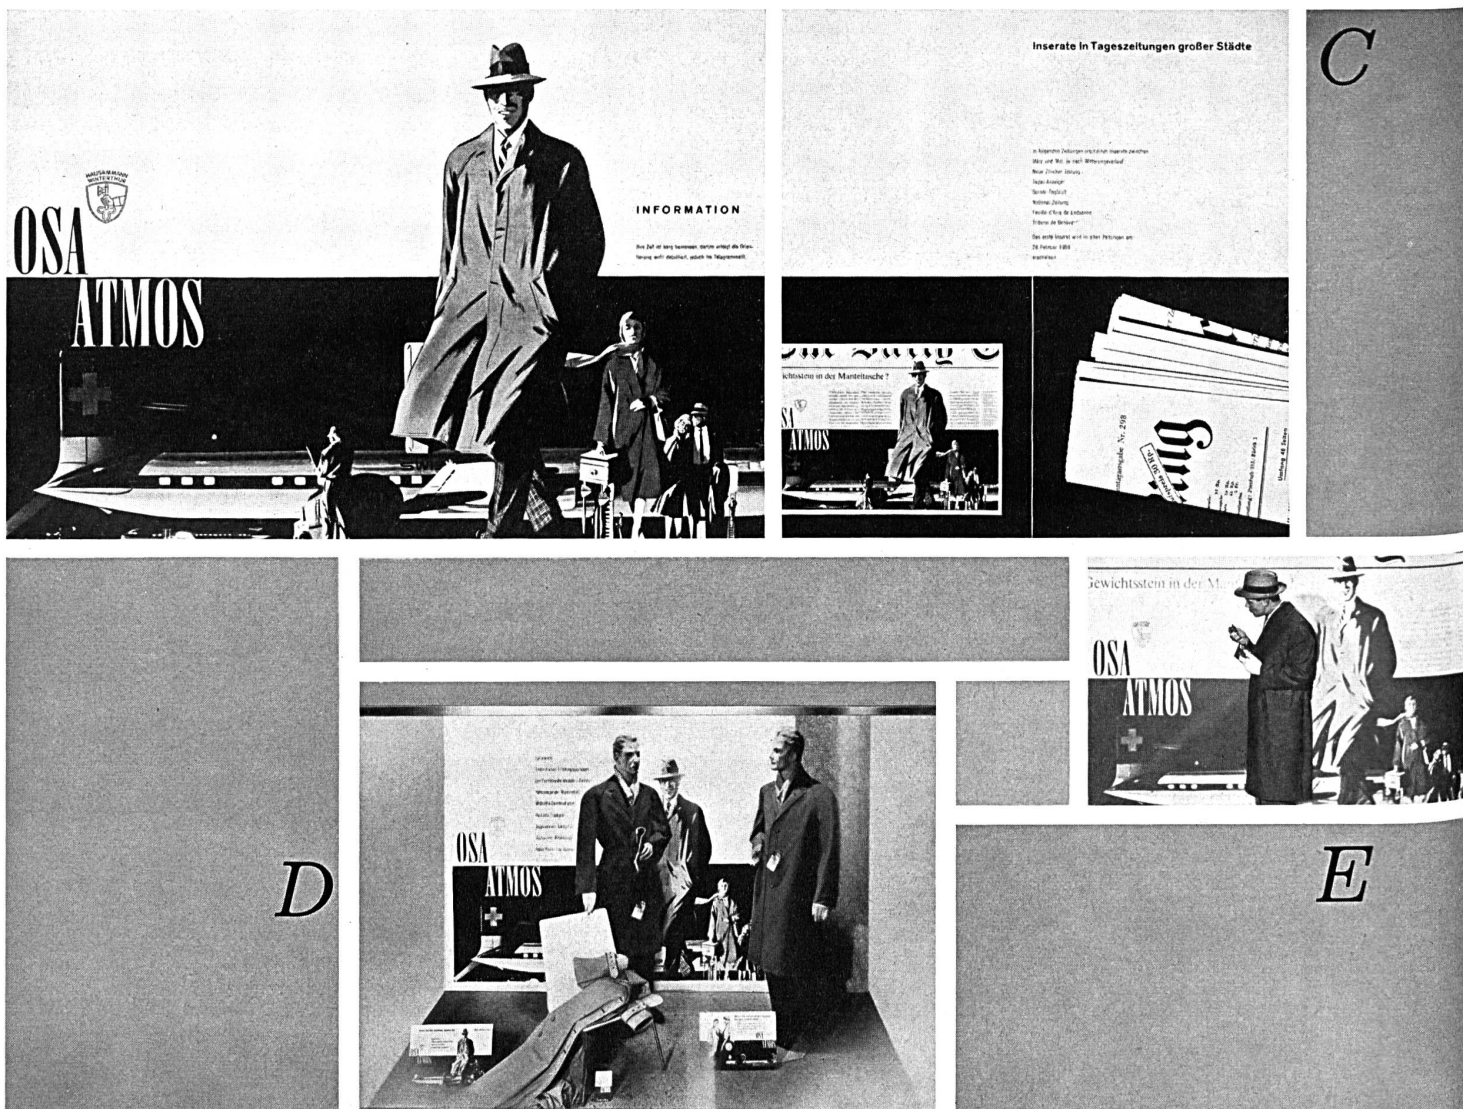

The manufacturer of the fabric supplies two elements of information with his product (A) : the woven black-and-silver sew-in label representing a quality guarantee and a booklet attached to a button of the raincoat. This small 16-page pamphlet is an original variation of the customary hang-tag ; it contains illustrated information on the merits of the fabric and tips on how to look after the garment. This booklet has a twofold purpose : in the first place, it is intended to inform sales personnel and supply arguments for use in sales promotion, in the second place, by repeating the same points, to assure the buyer that he has made a wise purchase. It also enables the owner of the coat to make himself familiar with these arguments and to use them in his turn in conversations with friends and acquaintances, this providing yet another link in the advertising chain. A satisfied customer, once he is sure of the article he has bought, is only too pleased to be able to quote a few technical details to back his claims when talking to friends.

All OSA-ATMOS advertising has a kind of family likeness in its presentation : each element is divided, from top to bottom, into two contrasting halves, one light, the other dark. This « leitmotif », very simple in itself, establishes a kind of connection between the different advertising elements and is expected to remain effective for a considerable time.

Our illustration shows how the basic idea has been adhered to in the « Information » (C) for retailers' instruction. The window display material consists of small stand-up labels which can be used in different ways, such as for marking coats displayed, or for sticking in coat pockets, etc. The « Airport » and « Automobile » advertisement themes have been used in the form of show-cards. Finally, this traditional advertising material (D) was supplemented by a giant poster, new in its type, as a show-window background. Four posters of « Raisin 4 » size (standardised in Switzerland under the name « world size ») are placed next to each other to form a « Raisin 16 » poster (101 inches wide by 71 inches high). Printed in black and white only, this background is an excellent foil for the superb shades of OSA-ATMOS fabrics.

In order to provide retailers with additional useful advertising material, four different four-colour post-cards (E) were designed, showing garments made of OSA-ATMOS, with an invitation on the back to visit the retail store at the beginning of the season. It was left to retailers to send these post-cards to their clients whenever they thought best.

As mentioned above, the double-page magazine advertisements (F) did not list all the advantages of the fabric. They concentrated rather on stressing certain essential arguments in appropriate thematic illustrations, so as tacitly to convey the idea that OSA-ATMOS is the rain-coat of today, created to meet the highest requirements.

Advertisements in daily newspapers, one of which is reproduced here (G), had to be stopped as sales got off to a start which surpassed all expectations, exhausted stocks and confronted makers-up with serious problems of delivery dates.

The foregoing represents not merely a pattern of a textile advertising campaign, but an account of the remarkable success achieved by a new Swiss fabric from the moment it was launched.

Gewichtsstein in der Manteltasche?

Doch, doch - Sie tragen ständig einen mit sich herum! Denn Ihr Regenmantel ist mindestens um ein Drittel zu schwer. Sie fühlen sich eingesperrt, wenn Sie tüchtig ausbrechen. Im Wagen nimmt er zuviel Platz ein. Sie tragen ihn ungern am Arm...

Der moderne Mensch freut viel. Er will leichte Sachen tragen - leichte Schuhe, leichte Kleidung. Für ihn schuf man Regenmäntel aus OSA-ATMOS, einem herrlichen neuen Gewebe aus 67% DIOLEN und 33% Baumwolle, das zu wilder Tussah-Seide erinnert.

Lassen Sie sich einen Regenmantel aus OSA-ATMOS zeigen. Sie finden ihn und seine wunderbaren Farben für Damen und Herren in guten Geschäften. An jedem Mantel hängt ein Buchken, das Ihnen verrät, warum er besser ist, als das, was Sie kennen.
